

Monthly Report (T2P)		Month	December-2023	10M	Date	04-Dec-2023
Discipline : Administrator		Department : GCM		Short Des : Technical Full Test 04/12/2023 Test555555...		Job Tag : B303
Technical Full Test 04/12/2023 Job management (a.k.a. project management) is a systematic approach to business operations that encompasses all activities within the job or work cycle, including analysis of the entire process so your team can improve the way they work the next time around ...
WBS Lv3 E-4263-TH-2301-01-01		Budget WBS (IO) (THB) 500,000.00		Budget Pending (THB) 251,000,00...		Budget Used (THB) 0.00
Project Manager .		MOC No MOC04122023		PO PO04122023		Contract CN04122023
Start 1-Dec-2023		Expect-Comp 4-Dec-2023		Guarantee SAC -		Actual SAC -
Actual/Plan (%) 100 %/ 100 %		Payment Progress		Cost of Project (THB) 300,000.00

Topic Figure		Highlight of This Month
		Note Monthly 04/10/2023 These stages are most often represented as a circle with stage one flowing into stage two flowing into stage three, and so on. It's important to understand, though, that a stage doesn't necessarily depend on the completion of the one before it. For example, once your team completes the quote/estimate stage and the client gives the green light, managers may then run task management, scheduling, document management, and others simultaneously. Some team members may even go back to stage one (lead/customer management) while others move on. It all depends on what works for your business. It's also important to understand that no two businesses are exactly alike. Therefore, no two businesses share the exact same job management cycle. For example, business A may rely more on a precise quote at the beginning of the job, whereas business B may rely on a more general estimate. At a more macroscopic level, business A may eliminate one or two steps, while business B makes use of all 10 stages. Problems / Mitigation / Next Work : Some team members may even go back to stage one (lead/customer management) while others move on. It all depends on what works for your business. It's also important to understand that no two businesses are exactly alike. Therefore, no two businesses share the exact same job management cycle. Need Support : For example, business A may rely more on a precise quote at the beginning of the job, whereas business B may rely on a more general estimate. At a more macroscopic level, business A may eliminate one or two steps, while business B makes use of all 10 stages. Remark : The key is to analyze your business, find the stages that work for you, and tweak the process so that your team can apply it to any job they receive, regardless of size, type, or complexity.

Figure 1 -